

Join us as we celebrate the 2022 Great Georgia Pollinator Census, counting pollinators throughout Georgia – and now South Carolina – on August 19 and 20. Share the following social media graphics and sample copy with your networks.

Important information:

- Tag us in your posts!
 - Great Georgia Pollinator Census: Instagram, Facebook
 - UGA Extension: Instagram, Facebook, Twitter
- Link to our website: <https://ggapc.org/>

INSTAGRAM

Post

- Sample copy: It may sound un-bee-lievable, but bees aren't the only pollinators out there. We are so excited to participate in the 2022 Great Georgia Pollinator Census! On August 19 and 20, we will be counting all of the pollinators that we can find! Catch all the buzz about this year's census at the link in our bio.
 - Link for bio: <https://ggapc.org/>
- Remember to put the link in your account bio (not the post itself), so it's clickable. Otherwise, viewers won't be able to access the link you shared.
- Download Graphic

Story

- Download Story
- Remember to add a link button, adding the link to the website, and customizing the sticker text to "Learn More"

FACEBOOK

- Sample Copy: How many pollinators can you name in your environment? Join us as we learn about pollinators and take part in the 2022 Great Georgia Pollinator Census on August 19 and 20 to see how many pollinators we can find! Learn more about how you can make the most of this un-bee-lievable opportunity: <https://ggapc.org/>
- Download Graphic

TWITTER

- Sample Copy: We are buzzing with excitement about participating in the 2022 Great Georgia Pollinator Census! On August 19 and 20, we will be venturing out to count all of the pollinators that we can find! Learn more about the count: <https://ggapc.org/>
- Download Graphic

